The Department of Psychological Sciences
in conjunction with the College of Arts and Science presents

Distinguished Lecture Series in Psychological Sciences

Conflict, Aggression, and Cooperation:
Psychological Perspectives on the Roots of War and Peace

This series will explore the complex processes that underpin the human capacities for constructive and destructive behavior. Distinguished scholars will share their research and insights on the causes of conflict and aggression and our potential for creating a more just and harmonious world.

February 26, 2009, 3:30 to 5:00
“Understanding Culture and Conflict: An Overview of Theory and Research Linking Culture, Conflict and Conflict Management”
Jeanne Brett, DeWitt W. Buchanan Jr. Distinguished Professor of Dispute Resolution and Organizations, and Director of the Dispute Resolution Research Center, Kellogg School of Management, Northwestern University

March 5, 2009, 3:30 to 5:00
“Neurobiology of Violence: Neuroethical and Neurolegal Implications”
Adrian Raine, Richard Perry University Professor, Departments of Criminology, Psychiatry and Psychology, University of Pennsylvania

April 2, 2009, 3:30 to 5:00
“From Transience to Transcendence: The Psychological Impact of Awareness of Mortality on Human Conflict, Aggression and Peaceful Coexistence”
Jamie Arndt, Associate Professor, Department of Psychological Sciences, University of Missouri

For more information, please visit events.psych.missouri.edu/lecture-series/

Sponsored by generous contributions from the Grimshaw Distinguished College Lecture Series in the Humanities and Social Sciences; the Fred McKinney Psychology Lectureship; the Melvin H. & Kathleen Marx Lecture in Experimental Psychology Fund; the Vaughan Distinguished Visiting Scholar Program; the Donald W. Reynolds Journalism Institute; the Department of Management, Trulaske School of Business; the Department of Political Science; the Department of Sociology; the Department of Philosophy and the Graduate School PhD Completion Project